Keep Osang out of 'The Buzz,' GMA 7 tells ABS-CBN

By Han Yoon

ABS-CBN's new reality show 'The Buzz' is set to premiere on GMA 7's network. However, GMA 7 has expressed its concerns over the show's format, which involves contestants being buzzed out of the competition. The network is worried that this could lead to a loss of audience interest and ratings. GMA 7 executives have requested that ABS-CBN make changes to the show's format to ensure it remains competitive and entertaining for its viewers.

Brits warned anew of terror threat

BRITAIN'S FOREIGN OFFICE has issued a warning to British citizens in the Philippines to be alert to the possibility of a terrorist attack. The warning comes in the wake of a series of bombings in Manila and other parts of the country in recent months.

The Foreign Office said that it had received information from reliable sources that a group of terrorists, known as the New People's Army (NPA), was planning a series of attacks on British targets in the Philippines.

The NPA is a Marxist-Leninist group that has been active in the Philippines since the 1970s. It has been responsible for a number of bombings and assassinations in the country.

The Foreign Office said that it was not aware of any specific threats to British citizens in the Philippines at the moment. However, it urged British citizens to be alert to the possibility of a terrorist attack and to take appropriate precautions.

Ask US to reconsider nurse policy, solons urge gov't

MANILA, Dec. 10 (PNA) — A group of lawmakers in the Philippine House of Representatives today urged the government to ask the United States to reconsider its policy on the employment of Filipino nurses in the country.

The lawmakers, who are members of the House Committee on Health, said that the current policy, which allows the United States to hire Filipino nurses without the need for a license, is unfair to the Filipino nurses and the Philippine government.

They said that the current policy allows the United States to hire Filipino nurses at a lower salary than what they would receive in the Philippines, and that this is a violation of the Philippine Nurses' Act of 2002.

The lawmakers said that they will continue to monitor the situation and will take appropriate action if the United States does not reconsider its policy.

OPINION

Rush to judgment

The Philippine Daily Inquirer has been a pioneer in reporting on the PMA case. It has been a long and arduous journey, but the paper has been a steadfast advocate for transparency and accountability. The PMA case is a complex one, involving multiple parties and a long history of legal battles. The Inquirer has been instrumental in keeping the public informed about the latest developments in the case. The paper's reporting has been thorough and unbiased, providing a clear picture of the situation. The PMA case is a testament to the power of the press in holding those in power accountable. The Inquirer's commitment to this cause is commendable and deserves recognition.

Hark to the forest

While the PMA case is a complex one, it is not the only issue facing the Philippines. The country is also grappling with a number of other challenges, including poverty, corruption, and environmental degradation. The government has a responsibility to address these issues and ensure the well-being of its citizens. The PMA case is just one of many challenges facing the Philippines, and it is important that the government and the public work together to find solutions. Public comments on the Sierra Madre

Editor James R. Thompson Jr.

Can we save the Sierra Madre?

When the Sierra Madre was first proposed as a national monument, it was a place of great beauty and interest. The area was rich in natural resources and had a long history of human habitation. The monument was established to protect these resources and to provide a place for future generations to enjoy. However, over the years, the area has been subjected to increasing pressure from development and logging. The monument's boundaries have been eroded, and its natural resources have been depleted. The area is now in a state of decline, and it is up to us to decide if we can save it.

Wrestling with the issue of the degradation of the Sierra Madre

By Michael H. Allen

On the morning of the first of the month, I was driving to work. The weather was perfect, and the traffic was light. I was in a good mood, and I was looking forward to a day of work. As I was driving, I noticed a sign for the Sierra Madre. I had never heard of it before, and I was curious to see what it was. I turned off the main road and drove down a dirt road. The road was narrow and winding, and the scenery was beautiful. I saw many trees and plants that I had never seen before. I was impressed by the beauty of the area, and I was wondering how it had come to be in such a state of decline.

Recovering the natural beauty of the Sierra Madre

The Sierra Madre is a beautiful area, and it is a shame that it has been subjected to so much degradation. We need to take action to protect the area and to restore its natural beauty. We need to establish a national monument to protect the area, and we need to enforce the laws that protect the monument. We need to stop logging and development in the area, and we need to restore the area to its original state. We need to make sure that the Sierra Madre is a place that future generations can enjoy.

Communicating would not be exactly the best word to use for what a handful of people do.

And that's why, when it comes to the long process of creating a handwritten Christmas card,

the writer is often a mix of the artist and the craftsman. It's not just the words that count, but the way they are written, the color of the ink, the texture of the paper.

It's a craft, really. It's a way of saying what you mean, but also of saying what you don't mean. It's a way of saying what you think, but also of saying what you feel. It's a way of saying what you are,
but also of saying what you want to be.

It's a way of saying what you are, but also of saying what you want to be. It's a way of saying what you are, but also of saying what you want to be.
